Coroner to review cycling deaths

► Announcement comes after woman was killed biking earlier this month ► Effort to expand similar review done in Toronto in 1998

JOE LOFARO
@METRONEWS.CA

The Chief Coroner of Ontario announced that his office will conduct a review of cycling deaths in Ontario as a result of public concern about cyclists' safety.

The review is particularly timely in Ottawa after 33-year-old Danielle Naçu was killed while biking on Queen Street on Oct. 11 after being hit by a car door.

Last week Sommit Luangpakham was found guilty of dangerous driving causing bodily harm and leaving the scene of an accident for his collision with cyclists on March Road in 2009.

Neither Naçu's death nor the March incident will be reviewed, as Dr. Dan Cass, the Office's Regional Supervising Coroner for Toronto-West, said only deaths between 2006 and 2010 will be included. Cass will lead the review, which is already underway.

Cass cited several reasons for initiating the review, namely cycling deaths in Ontario being an ongoing safety concern, significant public interest from advocacy groups, and efforts to broaden a similar review done in Toronto in 1998.

"There were a number of things that came out of that review that were positive and we're hopeful that similar things will be identified and will arise from this review that will help us make recommendations to prevent deaths going forward," said Cass.

Several changes were made at the end of the Toronto review, including enhancing the amount of cycling content in the driver's handbook for new drivers and updating the Canada-wide CAN-BIKE education program.

The Office said it will publish a report from its findings after the new province-wide review is completed in Spring 2012. Ottawa-based Citizens for Safe Cycling welcomed the news yesterday.

"It is definitely time to take a closer look to how people die on bicycles," said

Cycle of danger

- The Office of the Chief Coroner of Ontario said it will look at 60 to 80 cycling deaths between 2006 and 2010 for the provincewide review.
- Some 15 to 20 cyclists die annually in Ontario as a result of accidental injuries.
- In Ottawa, there were six cycling deaths in 2010, two in 2009, none in 2008, three in 2007 and one in 2006.
- The number of collisions involving cycling in Ottawa have ranged from 240 to 260 per year in the last four years.
- With more than 1,000 cycling injuries per year, Toronto has a higher number of reported bike-car collisions per capita than that of any other Canadian city, according to Toronto Cyclist Union board member Patrick Brown.

the advocacy group's president, Hans Moor. "It's important to see where things go wrong and where we can fix that before we have even more accidents."

First Nations leaders gather in Ottawa

More than 200 entrepreneurs, politicians and First Nations leaders from across the country got down to business yesterday for the first-ever National Aboriginal Entrepreneurs Conference and Trade Show in Ottawa.

Minister of Aboriginal Affairs John Duncan opened the two-day event at the Westin Hotel by pledging more than $3 million to the Métis Entrepreneurship Fund. The money will help Métis businesses access between $250,000 to $1 million.

Canadian Council for Aboriginal Business CEO Clint Davis said expansion is one of the challenges aboriginal businesses face due to the difficulty in raising money.

"They don't have a huge network of contacts within the business community, so they at times can operate in isolation."

Davis said the council organized the two-day conference to get aboriginal business people from across the country in the same room to see where the opportunities lie.

City wants no stake in rail line

▶ Proposed line would accommodate additional freight and eventually passenger service from Pembroke into Ottawa by way of Pontiac, Fitzroy Harbour

JESSICA SMITH
@METRONEWS.CA

The City of Ottawa is on board, in theory, with plans for regional rail service northwest of Ottawa — but not willing to accept any liability for the project.

City council will consider a motion tomorrow by councillors Marianne Wilkinson and Eli El-Chantiry that will let municipalities in Renfrew County and Pontiac revitalize a rail line known as the Beachburg Subdivision but keep Ottawa out of the deal.

The line runs from Pembroke, though Pontiac, and east from Fitzroy Harbour into Ottawa. CN is in negotiations to sell the line to the proponents of the regional rail service, a group called Transport Pontiac Renfrew (TPR).

TPR initially proposed a plan that would see Ottawa — and all the other municipalities along the line — receive the line as a gift from CN and issue a tax receipt to CN, before turning the line over to TPR.

"Our legal team said we didn't want to own it at any time," said Wilkinson. "If an accident happens and the consortium doesn't have enough money to pay the legal bill, it goes back to the next-last owner, which would be the city for 10 minutes," she said.

Ottawa isn't the only wary municipality. Laurentian Valley township Mayor Jack Wilson said his council also decided to back out of the tax-receipt plan after consulting with a lawyer.

Mayor of Township of Whitewater Region Jim Labow said he is waiting to hear back from the Canadian Revenue Agency on the issue.

Pontiac county Warden Michael McCrank said the four Quebec municipalities on the line are willing to go along with the tax receipt plan, because TPR will carry insurance and only operate if it's profitable.

"It's very important going forward," he said. Pontiac and Renfrew counties were developed with a rail line."

Bodies 'piled' in sunken car, police diver testifies

► Window was open, water was shallow enough that victims could have stood on car roof, officer says ► Trial continues in 'honour killing'

A police diver at first couldn't tell how many bodies were inside a submerged car found in the Kingston Mills locks in Kingston, Ont., two years ago.

The bodies were "piled" on each other, OPP Const. Glenn Newell testified yesterday at the first-degree murder trial of three people charged in the deaths of four Afghan women.

Newell said when he entered the water and got a look at the submerged car he could see there were bodies and a floating teddy bear in the car.

Newell said the driver's-side window was completely down and the car was in about two metres of water.

Inside the Nissan Sentra were the bodies of sisters

► A window of the Nissan Sentra found in Kingston Mills locks was rolled down, an OPP diver said yesterday.

Zainab, 19, Sahar, 17, Geeti, 13, and Rona Amir Mohammad, 52, the first wife of Mohammad Shafia.

Shafia, his second wife, Tooba Mohammad Yahya, 41, and their son Hamed, 20, have pleaded not guilty to four counts of first-degree murder.

Newell said people usually try to get out of a submerged car, but it didn't appear that the victims had tried in this case.

"They were all piled on top of each other almost. It was very strange," he said.

The fact that the window was down and the water was shallow, about a metre from the top of the car to the surface, didn't make sense, he said.

"I would think it would make it very simple for somebody, who could get to that window, to get out of that window," he said.

Based on the position of the bodies it was impossible to determine who had been driving, but Newell noted the car was in first gear and the keys in the ignition.

"It didn't really make a whole lot of sense to me how that would happen," he said, adding he made a point of telling officers on the surface that he was "quite perplexed" about not being able to identify the driver. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Where refugees can dream

► Life a journey, not a destination for those living in Dadaab, Kenya
► Metro offers a glimpse inside the world's largest refugee camp

JORDAN POUILLE METRO WORLD NEWS

In the middle of the desert, 100 kilometres from Somalia and 500 kilometres from Nairobi, Mohamed and Hussein, both 22, listen to an MP3 player on their plastic chairs while waiting for kids to be vaccinated. Since last summer, an epidemic of measles has been spreading all over Dadaab, a camp with 450,000 people. Ninety-seven per cent of them are Somali citizens who escaped their country because of drought, famine and lack of security. Dadaab refugee camp, established in 1991, has been getting bigger and bigger ever since.

Mohamed and Hussein work as nurses at the International Rescue Committee (IRC) hospital. In fact, it's only a bunch of white tents where newly arrived refugee families can get medical treatment and food for their malnourished children.

The young men have been assigned to the Kamboos annex, a new camp set up by UNHCR, the UN refugee agency, to relieve overcrowding in historical camps of Dagahaley, Agadera and Ifo.

Fortunately, a groundwater reserve has just been discovered here, food is provided by the UN World Food Programme on a daily basis but everything else — education, hospital, toilets and even security — is still lacking.

Mohamed and Hussein know too well what this is all about. There are Somali refugees who came here with their families when they were two years old. Mohamed often says, "I wish I could come back if my country was peaceful."

But will it ever be? In Somalia, al-Shabab fighters control most of the country including the outskirts of Dadaab refugee camp. Somali authorities have not been able to create a stable government for the last 20 years and African Union troops in Mogadishu are overwhelmed.

Canada, the United States and Great Britain are the few countries that offer exile to Somali refugees. A dozen of ex-Dadaab residents are now enjoying scholarship in Canadian universities, for example. But competition is fierce and Mohamed believes he might never be able to leave Dadaab. Life is tough in the desert but he is thinking about settling down for real.

"I am going to start looking for a girlfriend here. I hope she will be educated and hard-working like me."

Once Mohamed gets married, UNHCR will give him a tent. He might want to start a small business with his brother, who studies at a Dadaab vocational school financed by the Norway Refugee Council. Here, young Kenyan locals or refugees learn how to cut hair, apply makeup, sew and even how to fix a radio receiver.

The school headmaster admits that it's hard to convince refugees to turn up at school everyday: "Some of Dadaab, with a total area of 50 square kilometres and a population of roughly 450,000, is the largest refugee camp in the world.

Lesbian couple turfed from Timmies

▶ Tim Hortons says it apologized, not store's intent to 'offend or target anyone based on ... sexual orientation'

A southwestern Ontario reverend says he was acting as a concerned father when he complained about a couple's public display of affection at a Tim Hortons in Blenheim last month.

Eric Revie of Glad Tidings Community Church says he was there with his wife and two children when he asked the manager to tell the couple to tone it down.

Riley Duckworth, 25, of London, and her partner Patricia Pattenden, 23, say they were told to leave the coffee shop because they are lesbians.

But Revie says at the time he thought it was a man and woman and found out the couple was actually same sex after he complained.

"There was a couple that were straddling each other, making out ... not just kissing, going further than that," Revie told a Chatham radio station yesterday.

"I had my children there. I asked the manager if she could ask them to tone it down," he said.

Duckworth says she and Pattenden were outside drinking coffee with family and friends and kissed once or twice but denies they were groping each other.

Duckworth said she and Pattenden were told "to leave within five minutes or the cops would be called."

Dozens of people, including friends, family and members of Pride Chatham-Kent, plan to demonstrate outside the coffee shop on Thursday.

Alexandra Cygal, a Tim Hortons spokeswoman, said management has apologized and invited the women back.

Duckworth said she'll never return to Tim Hortons again. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Few jailed over grow-op charges: Study

Only about one of every six people convicted in marijuana grow-op cases goes to jail, says a newly released Justice Department study.

The finding suggests the new minimum-sentence provisions in the Conservative government's omnibus crime bill could dramatically increase the number of people behind bars for running grow-ops.

Bill C-10, now before a House of Commons committee, would impose a minimum sentence of six months' jail for anyone growing between six and 200 marijuana plants. Minimum terms increase in steps to two years for higher quantities, with more severe terms for using rented premises. The study was obtained under the Access to Information Act.

Search ongoing for quake victims

► Turkey's deputy PM expects search-and-rescue efforts to end as early as today ► About 1,300 injured

Distraught Turkish families mourned outside a mosque or sought to identify loved ones among rows of bodies yesterday as rescue workers scoured debris for survivors after a 7.2-magnitude quake that killed nearly 300 people.

Rescue teams with generator-powered floodlights worked into the night in the worst-hit city of Ercis, where running water and electricity were cut out by the quake that rocked eastern Turkey on Sunday.

Unnerved by more than 200 aftershocks, many slept outside their homes, making campfires to ward off the cold, as aid organizations rushed to erect tents for the homeless.

Victims were trapped in mounds of concrete, twisted steel and construction debris after at least 100 buildings in two cities and mud-brick homes in nearby villages pancaked or partially collapsed in Sunday's earthquake. About 80 multi-storey buildings collapsed in Ercis, a city of 75,000 that lies in one of Turkey's most quake-prone zones.

MAP MAKER. Google is taking inspiration from Wikipedia and inviting Canadians to scan Google Maps in their hometowns and make improvements.

Google search tool changes

REACTION. Google has quietly made significant changes to how it performs searches and users are demanding an undo.

Users on Google's help forum recently noticed that adding the + symbol in searches no longer works.

Using the + symbol before a word ensured that Google only retrieved web pages including that term. For example, a search for "+Canada online" produced a list of web pages that all included the word Canada somewhere on the page.

Now, users must use double quotation marks around a word instead of the old + symbol: "Canada" replaces +Canada in Google-speak.

Reaction to the change has been largely negative.

Selling old gold and silver jewelry? The bad. The ugly. The good.

Skyrocketing gold and silver prices has many consumers wondering how much their old or broken gold jewelry is worth.

The question you should be asking yourself is: where do you go to ensure you receive a fair offer? There are plenty of options but which ones pass the common sense test?

Option #1: New companies. Inflated promises. False advertising.

Anyone can post really high payout prices. There are no laws to protect unsuspecting consumers from misleading ads that promise to pay outrageous and unrealistic prices.

They use them to lure people in, then adjust weights, inaccurately evaluate material (eg. say something is 10kt when it's actually 14kt). The bottom line, people end up with less money in their pocket, not more.

Option #2: Mail away your gold. Hope for the best.

Most consumers feel uneasy about mailing their jewellery to one of the many flashy "Cash for Gold" type companies seen on TV. The truth is, several of these companies have received harsh criticism from consumer advocacy groups because of their notoriously shady sales tactics and low payouts.

So, if those ads featuring cash waving "customers" send a chill down your spine, it's for good reason.

Option #3: Recycle Frog, you be the judge.

Recycle Frog is an Ottawa-based precious metals recycling company that has built its business by serving today's more prudent middle and upper-middle-class consumer. Comprised primarily of ex-Royal Canadian Mint employees, Recycle Frog's payout rates are published, and consistently rank among the highest in the industry.

One-on-one evaluations are conducted at their many convenient public events or are pre-scheduled at their World Exchange Plaza location. They're a trusted fundraising partner to various charitable organizations including the United Way, CHEO, Christmas Exchange and The Canadian Cancer Society.

Get a competitive, haggle-free offer for your old gold and silver by simply calling Recycle Frog at 613-695-1236 or visit their website at www.recyclefrog.com for more information.

DIY COSTUME TRICKS A TREAT

SHE SAYS ...

JESSICA NAPIER
METRO

All right made-up holiday enthusiasts, October 31st is just around the corner and while some of us like to plan elaborate costume concepts months ahead of time, I'm sure plenty of you are still scrambling to figure out what to wear come Halloween night. Before you spent $50 on a lame store-bought pirate costume (oh look, another Captain Jack Sparrow), you might want to consider what you're trying to achieve on the most spooktacular night of the year. Whether you're going for scary, sexy or something else entirely, here are a few do-it-yourself costume ideas with various outcomes.

Objective: Upstage all of your friends in an inappropriate fashion.

Costume: Pippa Middleton (bridal edition).

What you'll need: Body-hugging white dress, fake British accent, show-stealing caboose.

Objective: When it comes to Halloween, you want people to know that you're totally over it.

Costume: Brooklyn hipster.

What you'll need: Plaid shirt, ironic mustache, Moleskin notebook filled with passages from your favourite posts on Thought Catalog. Remember to keep your "I'm so bored" face on for the entire night.

Objective: Finish all of that leftover self-tanner you've been meaning to throw out.

Costume: Lindsay Lohan mug shots through the ages.

What you'll need: Three friends, blond wigs, orange jumpsuits. Don't forget to practice your parole-breaking smirks beforehand.

"Ryan Gosling in Drive ... If you can pull this off, call me."

Objective: You're not exactly sure what swooning looks like, but you'd like to find out.

Costume: Ryan Gosling in Drive.

What you'll need: Satin scorpion jacket, driving gloves, smoldering good looks. If you can pull this off, call me.

Objective: Inspire others to question whether it's "too soon" for your costume.

Costume: Steve Jobs.

What you'll need: Black turtleneck, jeans, iPad, questionable sense of timing.

Objective: Accumulate enough mini Snickers bars to last you until mid-December.

Costume: Good-natured parent.

What you'll need: Comfortable walking shoes, flashlight, pillowcase, borrowed child willing to share the goods (this might be hard to find).

Objective: You want fellow partygoers to roll their eyes and call you a tool.

Costume: Charlie Sheen.

What you'll need: Bowling shirt, fedora, vials of #tigerblood, a couple of blonde women willing to act as your "goddesses" for the evening (even harder to find than the aforementioned candy-sharing child).

Worth mentioning

SHUTTLECOCKS. Russian President Dmitry Medvedev promoted the game of badminton in his video blog yesterday, describing it as the choice of those who seek success.

Dressed to play and holding a badminton racket, he told viewers that the sport helps not only in developing physical fitness and quick reactions but in learning to make decisions in life.

"Those who play badminton well can make quick decisions, which means they have the will to achieve success," Medvedev said in the clip posted on the Kremlin website.

He is then shown playing the game with Prime Minister Vladimir Putin, the two of them hitting a shuttlecock back and forth in an otherwise empty sports hall.

Medvedev's video clip was intended to promote badminton in Russian schools, but it was met with some ridicule on the Internet — even on his own edited blog, where Dmitry Yermolayev suggested that he should be worried about "more global issues than the type of physical education in schools."

WEIRD NEWS

Vette stalls theft dead in its tracks

A would-be car thief allegedly armed with an axe has learned a powerful lesson from a powerless car parked in a Prince George, B.C., driveway.

RCMP Cpl. Craig Douglass said yesterday that Brent Jameson Morgan, 20, allegedly jumped into the idling Corvette just as the owner was putting away a charger used to revive the sports car's dead battery.

The owner watched in disbelief as the suspect rolled up the power windows, locked the power doors and promptly stalled the vehicle

The shocked owner wasn't able to take any action because the man in his car was brandishing bear spray, Douglass said.

With not enough juice in the battery to restart the car, the suspect was trapped inside the Corvette after failing to break the window with the victim's anti-theft steering wheel lock and an axe in his backpack.

"As it turns out, all the suspect would have had to do was manually slide the door lock to the side and the door would have opened," Douglass said.

Morgan has been charged with theft, mischief, possession of break-in instruments and one other charge.

Felicity Jones bares all

► The Like Crazy star dishes on the movie's heavily improvised, non-stop filming style

NED EHRBAR
SCENE@METRONEWS.CA
METRO WORLD NEWS IN HOLLYWOOD

British actress Felicity Jones makes a name for herself with Like Crazy, a lyrical, honest portrayal of a young couple (Jones and Anton Yelchin) dealing with the harsh realities of romance at odds with the practical world. It's a bold, emotionally honest performance, and one Jones had to maintain throughout shooting — the heavily improvised film was shot nearly round-the-clock, with the two leads never knowing what exactly would make it on screen. An odd working experience, to be sure, but one Jones says changed her life.

You were pretty much in character around the clock for this movie. How was that?

You just have to live and breathe it for the time that you're making the movie, so you don't have the mind-space to think about anything else but that. And so we were all at a point in our lives where we wanted and were able to just completely immerse ourselves in this project. And so we just spent every minute of the day with each other. It became this rather intimate triumvirate with Drake, Anton and I. We all felt that we wanted to make something unusual and wanted to be brave and not be conventional.

How has your approach to other projects changed after working this way?

I found after Like Crazy, it was a revolution in many ways, in that all the ideas I'd had about acting and about performance were completely changed. And after Like Crazy, I felt this incredible calmness that I'd never had before. As an actor, because you don't have control over the whole product, you become quite the perfectionist. But after Like Crazy I suddenly just felt more relaxed about letting things be, and that the whole ethos of improvisation is that things will happen, and interesting creative things will happen if you relax. And I took that mantra with me. I think every few years there's a job that completely changes everything, and Like Crazy was one of those jobs.

The film skips over a lot of the bigger, more traditional movie moments for a romance.

What's interesting is — because we shot so much footage and the takes are so long — is that you just keep going until you find something interesting. You can be filming 40-minute takes and things like that. It was really unclear where the story would go, and actually things that were in the outline that were in the original script didn't end up in the final film. I was so surprised when I first watched it that you spend so little with them when they're actually enjoying their relationship. That's such a small part of the film, and in the original script that was half the movie.

That summer courtship montage does go by incredibly fast.

Exactly, exactly. But in a way I think that's what makes it so powerful, because as an audience you feel like, "I want more of that!" Which is how they feel. It's exactly what we want. We want to manipulate your emotions.

How do you decompress from making a film like this?

Um... lots of alcohol (laughs). Don't put that in. Just reading and watching movies, and moving very little from the couch to the kitchen is the main thing.

Luckily, on Sunday night, he cleaned up for the red carpet for the film's Paris premiere by shaving his beard down to a goatee (he also donned a sleek Dolce and Gabbana suit, which helped). That goatee we ladies can live with. But if you go full-on Brad Pitt/Mark Twain goatee, we're going to have to talk, Robert.

► Experts warn that you are playing a dangerous game if you are trying to cut calories so that you can drink.

Cutting weight to drink

► New study shows that “drunkorexia” more common among young women

CELIA MILNE
LIFE@METRONEWS.CA

Saving calories to go drinking?

The idea of rationing food so there are calories to spend on alcohol is not new. Girl groups laugh about it. College students do it. But it could be a dangerous habit for those in your group who have social and anxiety problems.

Sixteen per cent of college students in a recent U.S. survey admitted to combining disordered eating and binge drinking. The practice — which has been coined “drunkorexia,” was three times more common in women than men, according to research at the University of Missouri.

“The report doesn’t surprise me and I’d imagine there could be a similar pattern in Canadian students,” says Lauren Dixon, a social worker in the Eating Disorders and Addiction Clinic at the Centre for Addiction and Mental Health (CAMH) in Toronto. Drunkorexia is not a formal diagnosis but rather an identified pattern of behaviour, she adds. The appeal for students is that they prevent weight gain, get drunk faster and save money.

But kids are toying with powerful forces here, warns Dixon.

“If it’s a trend among friends to use alcohol meal-replacement, some young women in the group may be significantly more vulnerable than others to have the behaviour develop into a full-fledged eating or alcohol disorder.”

Both problems emerge, she says, from the same fundamental difficulty with managing emotions and social interactions.

Victoria Osborne, from the University of Missouri, warned that drunkorexia can have shorter-term consequences such as having difficulty concentrating, being more at risk for violence, engaging in risky sexual behaviour, developing alcohol poisoning, and damaging vital organs. Her research has not yet been published or peer-reviewed.

What you need to know

- Advice Some people who regularly skip food and then binge drink are at risk for serious eating disorders and alcohol dependence. If you’re worried about a friend or family member, let them know you’re concerned and tell them you understand, suggests Lauren Dixon, a social worker in the Eating Disorders and Addiction Clinic at the Centre for Addiction and Mental Health (CAMH) in Toronto.

What is endurance exercise? Aerobic activity, such as brisk walking, running or cycling, that improves cardio-respirato-

So, how was the study done? It may sound strange, but the lead researcher had mice with physical characteristics

ARE YOUR GHOULS AND GOBLINS LOOKING AFTER THEIR TEETH THIS HALLOWE'EN?

Very soon, schools, streets and houses will be filled with ghosts, ghouls and goblins, all trying their best to spook, startle and scare us! It is a scary time of year as all sorts of vampires, zombies and other fiendish characters will be wandering the streets looking to satisfy their thirst for...sugar!

Halloween can bring great fun. But as a parent, the prospect of our children consuming such large quantities of sticky, sweet, sugary candy is quite frightening! After all, when was the last time you heard anything about the positive health benefits of processed sugar!

Getting children to eat healthier is always a challenge. Many schools have been helping by removing chocolate bars, chips or soft drinks from vending machines on their property. But children still have no trouble finding sugary, starchy foods. And we spend Halloween literally giving these foods away!

We know that candies, candy bars and other similar confections have contributed to the increasing epidemic of childhood obesity.

Dr. Bao Nguyen

But they are also contributing to the increasing problem of tooth decay amongst young children. In fact, conditions associated with tooth decay are one of the most common causes for children of all ages to miss school! Given that missing too much school can result in lower grades, it is understandable that we approach Halloween with some fear and trepidation!

Still, not everything about Halloween and all that candy should make your hair stand on end! Moderate amounts of treats can usually be overcome by proper cleaning of your little vampire's fangs!

So encourage your children to brush after eating. Remember, the longer sugary foods are allowed to remain on their teeth, the more damage they can do. Brushing after every meal and snack can often be your best defense. Two minutes per session is the recommended amount of time. And do not forget to floss at least once per day!

So let's all have a frightfully, scary Halloween. Let your children enjoy some sugar, but do your best to make sure it is a moderate amount.

Because limiting the amount of sugar your kids eat is a healthy habit...and healthy habits lead to healthy lives.

Spice up apple season in savoury way

► Get this skillet chicken dish bathed in a sweet-savoury sauce of apples and onions on the table in 30 minutes

Curried Apple Chicken Sauté is a great way to use apples in something other than pie or apple sauce. It serves four.

Preparation:

1 In skillet over medium-high heat, melt 15 ml (1 tbsp) of butter. Season chicken on both sides with salt and pepper, then add half of it to pan. Cook 3 minutes per side, then transfer to a plate. Add remaining 15 ml (1 tbsp) butter and repeat with remaining chicken. Transfer second batch to plate, cover with foil and set aside.

2 Return skillet to heat and add onion. Sauté 4 minutes; add cinnamon, curry powder and paprika. Sauté 30 seconds, then add apples. Toss well to coat, then cover pan, reduce heat to low and cook 5 minutes until apples tender.

3 Uncover pan and stir in vinegar. In glass, mix water and cornstarch, then add to skillet. Stir, then bring to a simmer. Return chicken to skillet, cover with sauce, then cover skillet and cook 8 minutes or until sauce thickens and chicken is fully cooked. Season with salt and pepper. Serve chicken with apple sauce spooned over it.

Is there such a thing as Halloween etiquette? Anonymous

Interestingly enough, yes there absolutely is good Halloween etiquette. Below are six simple guidelines to help you have a fun and great Halloween season.

1. Never cross through the flowerbeds going from house to house. Always walk up the driveway or walkway.

2. Repeatedly ringing the doorbell is rude and unnecessary. When you arrive at the door, ring the doorbell once and wait for the door to be answered.

3. When answering the door, don't over-scare trick-or-treating toddlers.

4. Don't be greedy. If you're offered a large bowl of candy, take a little bit, not a huge handful, and always say thank you!

5. If the party invitation says "wear a costume," you are required to wear a costume.

► Your local farmers' market is a good spot to visit with your partner.

Ideas for your next date

1 Market yourselves
Get fresh with your honey. Take in the sights and sounds of your local farmers' market. Stroll with your sweetie as you linger over fresh fruits and veggies, deli meats and baked goods. Makes the perfect precursor to a romantic date night in—alternate who cooks or make it a team effort.

2 Aw, shucks!
Sample the aphrodisiac powers of oysters! These slippery shellfish are said to boost libidos while satisfying hunger. Hit your local oyster bar to get in the mood.

Don't let high electricity bills burn up savings

ISTOCK

ALISON GRIFFITHS
MONEY@METRONEWS.CA

With household debt at historically high levels, small surprise that nearly half of all Canadians confess to living paycheque to paycheque.

And, judging by my inbox, many of you despair about ever getting ahead.

Forget the big picture for the moment. It just makes your head ache.

Instead, focus on creating a little financial buffer by saving a few dollars on everyday expenses.

With winter approaching it's an excellent time to reduce your electricity footprint. I tackled mine three years ago.

My husband and I live in a leaky 160-year-old stone house so our experience won't match a townhouse dweller.

Nibbling away at electricity expenses will put nearly $24,000 in my pocket.

-ALISON'S MONEY RULE

Still, every buck not spent is a buck back in your pocket.

With very little effort we saved at least $150 a month, or $1,800 a year.

1. I had an ancient fridge in my basement chugging away.

The Ontario Power Authority hauled it away (and will still do so) for free.

Check your own jurisdiction. BC Hydro, for instance, picks up 10 to 24 cubic foot fridges gratis and gives you $30 to boot.

2. I've always been pretty good at turning off lights but I went one step further, turning off power bars, the satellite receiver and everything else that had a standby setting.

3. We changed to incandescent bulbs in low traffic, non-reading areas.

We initially switched everything but found they didn't provide enough illumination for intensive reading or computer work.

4. We weather-stripped, caulked like crazy and applied plastic film to windows facing the north westerly's.

5. The temp got tweaked and we adapted

Electricity costs:

- ▶ Clothes dryer -- $500 to $1,000 annually
- ▶ Clothes washer -- $100 annually
- ▶ Old fridge or freezer -- $150 annually
- ▶ Heating and cooling -- 60 per cent of total electricity bill pretty well to higher air conditioning and lower heat settings.

I estimate that about $80 of that $150 monthly savings was through heating and cooling alone.

6. It's become a matter of pride in our house that we use the dryer only for emergencies — for example, when it's 10 p.m. and someone forgot to hang out the sheets.

I now actually prefer the crinkly feel of air-dried clothes and no longer use those icky anti-static sheets.

Voilà! $150 saved monthly = $23,636 over 10 years at an average five per cent rate of return. Even more if you put it in your RESP or RRSP.

A rotten economy makes extravagant dating nearly impossible. Forget full-priced tickets to Arcade Fire or a romantic helicopter ride.

I double dare you to use a coupon on your next date.

According to CouponCabin's October 2011 survey, nearly 20 per cent of adults have used a coupon on their first date and received a positive reaction.

Of the remaining respondents, 75 per cent said they wouldn't be offended if their date used a coupon to pay.

Times have changed and it's no longer frowned upon to be frugal while dating.

In fact, if frugality is one of your core values, saving money while dating is a great way to test whether your partner is financially compatible with you.

Downsize your date and focus on spending free quality time together.

Grab a java and go for a walk. Play a game of tennis or Monopoly.

If you're into old movies, rent DVDs from the library. Go grocery shopping and cook a meal at home rather than eating at a fancy restaurant.

Date online. You can join online dating communities like eHarmony and use coupons for your membership.

Plus, you can pre-screen your date so that you don't waste time and money getting to know someone who's incompatible with you.

Before you whip out a coupon, gauge whether your date would be cool with it or not.

If you think they're into couponing, crack a joke about your Groupon deal of the day, present the coupon to the server and carry on with your conversation.

If you think they'd freak out, sneak the coupon to the server en route to the washroom.

Saving money is sexy. Going into debt to impress a date is not.

Rangers would stick with Harrison for Game 7: Manager

If the World Series extends to seven games, Rangers manager Ron Washington has no plans to alter his pitching rotation. “It’s Harry’s game,” Washington said yesterday, referring to Matt Harrison. The question came up after left-hander Derek Holland threw 8½ scoreless innings in Game 4 against the Cardinals. Harrison, who made it through only 3½ innings in Game 3 on Saturday, would get his next turn in the rotation in Game 7.

► Trip to London seems more likely after Canadian women’s soccer team draws group with Costa Rica, Cuba, Haiti ► Two teams from eight-team tournament will make the cut

A favourable draw has improved the chances of the Canadian national women’s soccer team playing at next summer’s Olympics, but no one is taking a trip to London for granted.

Canada has been placed in Group A, along with Costa Rica, Cuba and Haiti for the CONCACAF Olympic qualifying tournament, which will be held in January at BC Place Stadium.

“We do like what happened today as far as our draw,” Canadian Soccer Association general secretary Peter Montopoli said after yesterday’s draw.

“I think our team will be pleased with it. It is CONCACAF and CONCACAF is a difficult confederation. You have to be on your game and ready for each and every match day.”

Coach John Herdman says Canada will need to combine patience and perseverance to be one of the two teams to move on to the Olympics.

How it works

The eight-team tournament will be held Jan. 19-29 at the newly refurbished BC Place Stadium in Vancouver.

“It’s not going to be easy,” Herdman said in a telephone interview from Guadalajara, Mexico, where the women are competing at the Pan American Games.

“I don’t think any game

- The group winners will play the second-place team from the other group in the semifinals.
- The two teams that reach the final qualify for the London Games.

in the qualifying tournament is easy. The challenge is you have to be smart. You can’t put your best team out every single game. You have to use the whole squad and be clever with which games you peak for.”

Canada is the top-seeded team in Group A. The powerful U.S. team, which lost to Japan in the final of this summer’s Women’s World Cup, is the top seed in Group B.

Joining the Americans in Group B are Mexico, Guatemala and the Dominican Republic. CONCACAF is the region that covers North American, Central America and the Caribbean.

Alfredsson will miss tonight’s game with injury

The Ottawa Senators will be without captain Daniel Alfredsson because of an undisclosed injury when they visit the Carolina Hurricanes tonight.

The 38-year-old has three goals and two assists in eight games with Ottawa so far this season.

Alfredsson underwent off-season back surgery after missing most of the second half of the 2010-11 campaign.

In a corresponding move, the club recalled forward Kaspars Daugavins from Binghamton of the American Hockey League.

THREE STARS

Spezza honoured

Los Angeles Kings goaltender Jonathan Quick, Ottawa Senators centre Jason Spezza and Washington Capitals goaltender Tomas Vokoun were named the NHL three stars of the week yesterday.

Quick became the first Kings goalie to post three consecutive shutouts as L.A. improved to 5-1-1.

Spezza registered seven points (three goals, four assists) last week in helping the Senators to two wins in three starts.

► Yesterday's answer

Sudoku

How to play

Fill in the grid, so that every row, every column and every 3x3 box contains the digits 1-9. There is no math involved. You solve the puzzle with reasoning and logic.

Yesterday's answer ►

Today's horoscope

♈ Aries March 21-April 20 What seemed so simple yesterday won't look quite so simple today, but tomorrow it will all make perfect sense again.

♉ Taurus April 21-May 21 There seems to be some confusion in your life at the moment, but don't worry, nothing bad will come of it.

♊ Gemini May 22-June 21 You should own up to your secret and move on.

♋ Cancer June 22-July 22 Be patient with your expectations of people.

♌ Leo July 23-Aug. 23 It would be a mistake to give up on something just because you can't understand what it's supposed to be about.

♍ Virgo Aug. 24-Sept. 22 You have a nasty habit of telling yourself that you are not good enough to succeed but that's nonsense.

♎ Libra Sept. 23-Oct. 23 You often find it hard to make up your mind.

♏ Scorpio Oct. 24-Nov. 22 Don't make any hard or fast relationship decisions just yet.

♐ Sagittarius Nov. 23-Dec. 21 At some stage today you will realize that what you were hoping for is not going to happen, but that's actually pretty good news.

♑ Capricorn Dec. 22-Jan. 20

What occurs over the next few days will prompt you to accept that maybe you don't know it all.

♒ Aquarius Jan. 21-Feb. 18

You need to take a radically different approach in certain important areas of your life, particularly on the home front.

♓ Pisces Feb. 19-March 20. It is time to let go of something, or maybe someone, you have come to rely on a bit too much. It won't be easy, of course, but it can and must be done if you are to move on to better things.
